The app came to our attention when it was nominated for PC Mag's Best Free App of 2015, so, we decided to put it to the test. We would have preferred the app to have had a little more polish and to be up-to-date, but it remains a solid little utility that might provide some peace of mind to the users who fear losing data. EXPORT EXCELLENT: The correct privacy is fundamental to every living creature, but especially in the Digital Era we all live in. As we constantly exchange personal information over the Internet, how can we protect the information we keep on our computers? One of the most popular products in the field is PeerBlock. PeerBlock is the software that makes computers safe again from the risk of being watched by unknown people. PeerBlock works by blocking all IP addresses and protocols that you don't want to use, so that none of the potential eavesdroppers can get access to your information. PeerBlock is extremely easy to use and completely transparent, because all operations are logged in an offline-database. Let's face it: most of us keep our information in very sensitive places and if an unscrupulous person gets to know that information, it's not so easy to protect against an attack. PeerBlock is the best solution to avoid that. USER SUPPORT: In case you need any additional support, you can always contact us and we will be more than happy to assist you. WE ARE GLAD TO SEE YOU! Moreover, the app can be configured to deny access to advertisements, spyware, and file sharing peer lists (other P2P apps or users). The application has built-in antivirus protection, and it can be easily upgraded. [W]e are confident that the app is a great alternative to have its detection power increase, to reduce the risks of being attacked and to learn about them. It is a task that may also be accomplished by using more traditional techniques, but the original PeerBlock team has chosen the easier way out to keep it out there.
